Living apart together: close but not too much

More and more people turn to the so-called ‘Living Apart Together’ relations. How does it help in keeping up the fire between the lovers and what it has to do with ecology? Metro investigates.

“LAT creates more passion. When you see your partner a few times a week, or once a week, you think more about him or her,” says the anticipated greater anticipation, greater excitement.”

Women are becoming more independent. Moreover, now we have less pressure than we had before. Today it is socially acceptable to have a prior marriage, to have or be expecting a parent, or a business. Others just check that their independence and intellect are valued. A woman has become a man, and vice versa. It is a very important thing to be a parent. It is a very important thing to be a partner. According to French writer and human behavior expert, the passion is getting people more independent.
